

Gazelles are a unique desert dwelling species in Egypt, adapted to its vegetation and water sources. Weighing thirty-six pounds at full growth, they were popular pets for elite ladies, and graceful young girls could be referred to as gazelles. Nefertiti's nurse calls her that in Book 1. They were also hunted for meat when their fast speeds could not outrun predators.